CACI

Discover the value of your key skills by joining our CACI key skills live online career panel

Key skills such as communication, teamwork and organisation are often undervalued and underestimated, but they are what make you who you are. Quite often we overlook the skills that we have nurtured throughout our life and forget how important they are for any career or organisation.

CACI focus on your qualities rather than “what qualifications do you have?” Capability and creativity are at the top of their list when hiring new talent to join their team and they believe that giving everyone an opportunity provides their business with a unique company culture where everyone can belong, and people can drive their purpose.

Join this one hour session to discover the value of your key skills.
